Dancing Classrooms Philly (DCP) is based on the Dancing Classrooms program in New York City, a highly acclaimed program of the American Ballroom Theater Company, created by Broadway dancer and show-dance champion Pierre Dulaine. DCP was launched in Philadelphia in the Fall of 2007 under the nonprofit, Arts in Schools Collaborative. The mission of the program is to build social awareness, confidence and self-esteem in children through the practice of social dance. Social dance calls on and improves a range of behavioral skills—decision-making, goal-setting, communication, and relationship building—that are proven to provide long-term benefits to health and well-being. The residency takes place in classrooms during the regular school day, and both classroom teachers and all 5th or 8th grade students are required to participate. After completing the residency, interested and talented students may continue to engage their passion for dance in the DCP Academy which offers a more comprehensive ballroom dancing curriculum. The outstanding students in the DCP Academy go on to join the Allstars troupe.

DAN "BUBBA" GAFFNEY is a Sousaphone player based out of Cinnaminson, NJ that has performed up and down the East Coast. Bubba currently plays with Whoaphat Brass Band based out of South Philadelphia that has performed in the Mummers Parade on New Years Day as well as many Weddings, Parties & Parades in the Philadelphia area over the last five years. Bubba has also performed with dozens of musicians, brass bands, and drum corps groups across the Northeast. Some of Bubba's inspiration for Sousaphone work include Kirk Joseph (Dirty Dozen Brass Band), Phil Frazier (Rebirth Brass Band), Matt Perine (Bonerama) and Alan Jaffe (Preservation Hall Jazz Band). Along with a busy performance schedule Bubba is working at Dillon Music in Woodbridge, NJ as an Instrument Repair Apprentice. Bubba is Apprenticing directly under Matt Walters who is nationally known as "The Tuba Whisperer" for his extensive knowledge on building, modifying and preserving Tubas.
